Singer bares heart and soul in great show

REVIEW

Laurna Robertson saw Horse at The Lemon Tree, Aberdeen

ON A night where the Aberdeen roads were treacherous, it was a pleasant surprise to see such a big turn out at the Lemon Tree. Horse must have been delighted by the loyalty of her fans. And as a thank you, she poured her heart and soul into the two-hour show. The 51-year-old, of five, who has supported Tina Turner, covered a wide range of emotions with her music. And the songs from her new album were tinged with loss.

"Tribute silenced rowdy crowd"

She sang a song about losing her dad suddenly. But it was the tribute to her mum and her battle with cancer, An End Of Days, which silenced the rowdy crowd. Far from sombre throughout, the energetic songstress had the crowd cheering to upbeat The Speed Of My Heartbeat. At the end of a fantastic show, the crowd made it impossible for Horse not to come back with an encore. And You Could Be Forgotten, left the crowd with the high they needed to face the biting cold outside.

SONGSTRESS: Horse delivered a fantastic performance for her loyal fans.
